Fail-to-Succeed Exams - Instructor Implementation Notes

In order to set up exams (quizzes) in Canvas to mark the correct answers, without showing the correct response, see the screenshot of my Canvas Quiz Settings below. Note that instead of making time limits (restricting them to specific amounts of time on each attempt, I instead make the assignment only available for the exam time (settings shown here).

Trouble Shooting: Sometimes, Canvas will switch your grade posting policy to manual. If this is the case, when students take the exam, they will not be able to see which questions are correct after their first attempt. If this happens, go to your gradebook and make sure when you press the three dots next to the assignment, the grade posting is Automatic. This can also be detected before they start the exam, by looking for small text that says manual next to the assignment in the gradebook.
